1.	On 29 June 1954, the Polish destroyer BLYSKAWICA was berthed at the quay in Hela harbor and was ready for sea. She was no longer in Hela on 11 July 1954.	25X1
2,	Petwhen C700 and C730 on 29 June 1954, the two Polish submerines were sighted when they executed maneuvering and diving exercises in the Gulf of Danzig west of the prescribed track extending from the spit of Hela Feninsula to Sdynia leading buoy. It was observed that the diving maneuvers of the two submarines took a little less than 45 seconds. 3 On 29 June 1954, Polish submarines were seen moored at their berths in Gdynia and, for the first time, a fourth submarine This submarine was of about 500 tons, had a plain conning tower, an AA weapon forward of the conning tower, but no net cutter. Its distinguishing number and the Polish naval ensign were clearly seen.	25X1 25X1 25X1 25X1
3.	Some parts of a destroyer berthed in harbor basin No V could be observed from time to time in Sdymia in early July. This destroyer was a little over 100 meters in length, had two smokestacks, one must, two superimposed guns on the foredeck and two more superimposed guns on the fantail. The forward smokestack was round and thin, while the efter smokestack was owal and a little thicker; both had a smoke hood. A large rangefinder was seen on the bridge, but no radar was observed. 2
4.	Ianding ships  and another two landing craft  were moored in harbor tasin No VI in carly July 1954. PT boats minesweepers  and harbor protection boats KT  mere observed in harbor basin No IX, where a three- masted gaff-rigged schooner, probably used as a training sailship was also berthed.	25X1 25X1 25X1 25X1 25X1

5 -	On the forenoon of 11 July the Folish submarine was sighted off the harbor entrance to Gdynia going away on a southerly course. It stopped and lowered what seemed to be a rubber boat which pulled away from the submarine toward the shore.	25X1
6.,	It was learned that the Day of the Polish Wavy had been celebrated on 28 June 1954. On that date the Polish war vessels stationed in Gdynia were reviewed off Hela Peninsula by the President of the Polish State Boleslaw Bierut and Murshal Rokossowski who had visited Gdynia and Hela. On the night of 28 June 1954, the Pole stated that there was a large fireworks display.	05)/4
